

Safety plea by father of two killed in camper accident

CARLYLE, Ill. (AP) — The father of two children killed when a fast freight truck slammed into a camper truck plucked with youngsters has issued a plea to the President, Congress and other officials for safety improvements.

A dozen people died Feb. 7 in Beckemeyer when the truck, driven by Henry Lowe, 60, of rural Carlyle, attempted to cross tracks safeguarded only by signs. Six of the children were Lowe's grandchildren.

Two of the dead, Robert 13, and Allen, 15, were N.J. Moorleghen's sons.

In an open letter written to the President, Congress, the governor, the state legislature and other officials, including railroad officers, Moorleghen demanded action. His plea was written the day after the crash. It read in part:

"We have spent billions of dollars to support and fight a useless war with tremendous loss of life. We have spent billions to bail out banks and big business. We have spent billions to provide arms to sustain governments which exist through force and oppression rather than popular support of the governed.

"We have spent billions to build highways to replace existing good highways which are adequate, while neglecting those that are most hazardous, contributing to additional loss of life.

"We squander millions on ridiculous and sometimes immoral research on 'pot' and sexual responses at Southern Illinois University.

"But we cannot spend dollars for safety devices to preserve life itself.

"In attempts to console the anguished, we will be told over and over that what will be will be.

"When has there been action taken to control the speed of trains through our communities?

"I petition everyone to act now and to demand action now to spare other parents and relatives the agony, the anguish and the unbearable sorrow that has beset the parents, brothers and sisters of the 11 children and the family of the grandfather (who so loved children) who were killed last night... because it costs too much for adequate safeguards at rail crossings.

"May God protect and preserve you from such an experience as I and others have suffered.

"You have found money for almost everything. Won't you find just a little money to help guarantee to the people of this nation our constitutional provisions for the pursuit of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for our citizens?"

Moorleghen is the regional superintendent of schools in Clinton and Washington counties.

Grand Detour addition urged

By LENNY INGRASSIA

For the second time in as many weeks, the Dixon School Board left its regular meeting place and went into the community to seek public input on enrollment and facility problems facing the district.

Following a well-attended meeting at Washington School Feb. 18, the board was met by a near-capacity crowd at Grand Detour School Wednesday night and one point came across clearly. Grand Detour parents want a permanent addition to the existing school as a long-range solution.

As one woman in the audience put it: "We feel discriminated against—you're fixing up the town schools when our kids want a music room, a library and an art room."

The word referendum came out on more than one occasion as a means of meeting a building program, whether it be an addition to Grand Detour or a proposed new junior high school on the campus of Madison School, as suggested by Supt. of Schools Stanley Weber.

The two sites were selected for special meetings of the board because of swelling enrollments in them in the lower grade levels.

Grand Detour Parent-Teacher Organization President Bill Hoyle urged the board to consider a bond referendum and pledged his support in backing its passage. Hoyle was referring to the retirement of a bond package approved in 1957 for an addition to Dixon High School. The last payment will be made with 1977 tax payments "and we could push this through without raising existing taxes," he reasoned. Taxes will be lowered 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation. That reduction will show up in 1978 tax bills.

Although not a recommendation, Weber presented a plan to set up a junior high school program at Madison School for seventh and eighth graders and shuffle the lower grade students now at Madison to other city schools.

"It will work," the superintendent stressed, referring to implementation in the fall semester.

Home economics and industrial art programs would be re-instituted under the plan and the total teaching staff would be reduced by three instructors, he said.

Advantages to Grand Detour School from the conversion would be the moving of two portable classrooms from Jefferson School to the Grand Detour site. Other advantages Weber listed included the development of programs geared to high school preparation, team teaching, the potential for varied "mini" courses and an expanded library.

Disadvantages include a reduction of interclass sports and busing of all seventh and eighth grade students to Madison.

Members of the audience questioned what merit a junior high school would have for Grand Detour—"the things you're talking about don't affect us," one woman remarked.

Outgoing Board President James Dixon stated: "It's just a proposal—I've only seen it for the first time tonight."

The suggestion for a junior high came from the Washington meeting along with urging the board look into alternative building sites for one or two grade levels. Weber said he is in contact with representatives of the United Methodist Church, near Washington School, in attempts to secure rental space in the lower level. Parents called for similar action to be studied for alternative buildings surrounding Grand Detour.

Weber's proposal did not speak to whether the board would approve the plan, whether the teaching staff would like it, or whether the community would support the junior high program.

Ronald Williams, Rt. 4, called on the board to build a permanent wing onto the Grand Detour School "as early as possible."

The Sauk Valley College dean of career education read a three-page written statement in which he mentioned possible legal reprisals against the district for what he termed "alleged discriminatory practices through unique facilities, thus unequal educational opportunities."

Williams cited "serious discrimination" based on facilities available to Grand Detour pupils compared with those facilities afforded children attending Jefferson or Washington Schools, including library facilities "as well as adequate music and other facilities."

Opposing busing of Grand Detour students to Dixon, Williams said his son spends one hour and 20 minutes each day on a bus "for a trip that normally takes 20 minutes round-trip."

"A decision to... bus them to the city... would be one more step in the degradation of the neighborhood school concept."

Changing of boundary lines has been mentioned as another temporary solution to overcrowding and to that point, Williams asserted: "The only people to benefit from re-districting are the owners of the bus companies... and the only losers are our children."

The remarks were met with applause by those in the audience.

Reiterating the possible legal action against the district, Williams said "I hope that this will not occur but we are very serious about our concern and will continue to be until this matter is resolved."

Dixon told the gathering the school board will be making decisions on what avenues to follow to solve short- and long-range problems within two months. A general public meeting is expected to be held at Dixon High School to air board proposals prior to a vote by the board.

In regular board action, Weber announced an administrative decision not to dismiss school Tuesday for the visit of presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan. He did say high school students will gather in assembly for the high school address and elementary students may attend the high school rally with parental permission.

Approved submitting of a federally funded grant application to set up a program entitled The Early Prevention of School Failure project. The program, if approved would implement screening of pre-kindergarten pupils, provide staff training to identify the problem student and work with parents to encourage success in school.

A bid for kitchen cabinets and sheet rock for the building trades project house was awarded to Home Lumber Co., for $2,713; paper and general teaching supplies bids were awarded to Peoria Paper House for $10,562 and J. S. Latta and Sons for $15,090; Interstate Audio-Visual was awarded a contract for an educational television system at a cost of $3,769 and Russ Tetrick Construction Co. was awarded a contract for remodeling a corridor at Lincoln School into a speech therapy room, at a cost of $2,564.

May drop charges against Dempsey, Dunphy Wednesday

A press conference has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday by the State Attorney General's office to announce its decision on two pending cases stemming from a probe into alleged absentee voting irregularities in the April 15 Dixon city elections.

Although trial dates have been re-scheduled for Alice Dempsey, 1119 W. Second St., and Herb Dunphy, 711 Peoria Ave., the state lawyers are expected to announce dismissal of all charges against the two. That report could not be confirmed, however.

The two were indicted on charges of perjury, solicitation and unlawful observation of voting on Sept. 25. Both were campaign workers in the successful re-election bid of City Commissioner Jim G. Burke, 317 Steele Ave., a co-defendant who was acquitted by a Lee County jury.

Attorneys Charles Levad, Springfield, and Brian David, Chicago, are expected to attend the Wednesday press conference.

No charges against Helms, others in break-in incident

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has decided not to bring charges against former CIA Director Richard Helms and other intelligence officials for their alleged roles in approving a 1971 domestic break-in, Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi announced today.

"After studying the facts carefully and interrogating the witnesses at length, the department concluded that the evidence did not meet the standards set by (a 1945 Supreme Court decision) to establish a criminal violation of the statutes," a department statement said.

Howard J. Osborn, the CIA's former director of security, and Richard Ober, a CIA official now on the National Security Council staff, also were known to have been under investigation for the break-in.

The break-in occurred at 2 a.m. on Feb. 20, 1971 at a photographer's studio in Fairfax City, Va., a suburb of Washington. The studio was run by Deborah Fitzgerald, a former agency employee, and her fiancé, Orlando Nunez, a former official in the Castro government in Cuba.

The Justice Department investigated whether Helms, now U.S. ambassador to Iran, and others violated civil rights statutes by their alleged role in the break-in.

The department statement said the 1945 Supreme Court decision was the leading case in interpreting the applicable civil rights statute and that the court ruling "requires proof that the accused willfully deprived an individual of a specific and well-defined constitutional right."

Levi said his decision was based on recommendations from Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler and Assistant Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger, head of the civil rights division.

Further inquiry into Nixon pardon ruled out

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Judiciary subcommittee today decided not to inquire further into President Ford's pardon of Richard M. Nixon.

The criminal justice subcommittee voted 4 to 3 to table a motion by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., which would have allowed the panel's staff to interview Philip W. Buchen, Ford's counsel; Alexander Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, and "other appropriate persons" regarding the presidential pardon.

Rep. Holtzman called for the inquiry on the basis of a news story which appeared in the Washington Post.

She said the Post article suggested that Haig, on or about Aug. 28, 1974, actively sought to persuade President Ford to pardon Nixon.

Nixon resigned on Aug. 9 and was pardoned for his alleged involvement in the Watergate scandal on Sept. 8, 1974.

If the Post article is true, she said, "this report indicates that President Ford, contrary to his representation to the American public and to the House subcommittee on criminal justice, was not candid about the facts surrounding his decision to issue the pardon."

Ford appeared before the judiciary subcommittee on Oct. 17, 1974, to recount events surrounding the Nixon pardon.

In his testimony, Ford said: "At no time after I became President on Aug. 9, 1974, was the subject of a pardon for Richard M. Nixon raised by the former president or by anyone representing him."

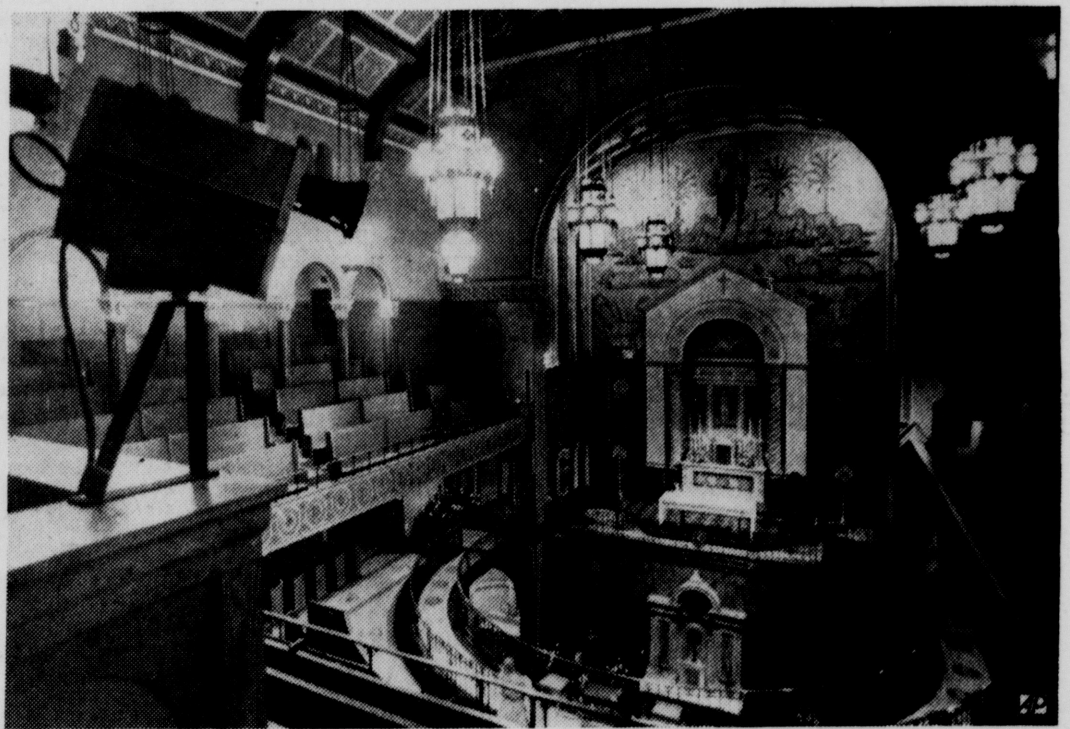

Rep. Holtzman said if the reported urgings by Haig were correct, then Ford did not tell the subcommittee all the facts.

She also said that according to the Post story, Haig conveyed to Ford the contents of a memorandum written by former Nixon counsel Leonard Garment that included the implication that Nixon would commit suicide if he were not pardoned.

The Post said that according to its sources, the memo indicated that Nixon's mental and physical condition could not stand the continued threat of criminal prosecution and implied that unless he were pardoned, Nixon might take his own life.

If, in fact, this information were presented to Ford by Haig or anyone else it should have been given to the subcommittee, Rep. Holtzman said.

Ford leads Reagan in New Hampshire: Morton

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — President Ford's chief political aide, Rogers C.B. Morton, says a two-day swing through northern New Hampshire has convinced him that Ford is the Republican frontrunner in the nation's first presidential primary.

Morton says he arrived in New Hampshire "with kind of the blues... with the idea that we were in a tough situation."

But now, he said, "I think we're the frontrunner."

Ford is due in the state late today for a final campaign stint, an appearance in Keene tonight and a half-day in southeastern New Hampshire on Friday.

His opponent, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, arrives Friday for a last weekend of campaigning before the balloting Tuesday.

Both camps say the Republican race is close, with the decision probably in the hands of voters who are still undecided.

Morton, the presidential counselor who handles political tasks for the White House, said Wednesday that he has no figures or polls to back up his optimism.

"I feel intuitively that there is a swing toward the President," he said in Concord. "Maybe it's because I'm on that side."

While Morton claimed the role of favorite for Ford, two Democrats tried to pin the label on each other.

Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona said former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is the frontrunner. Carter said it's Udall, "because he's concentrated almost all his entire past 18 months" in New Hampshire.

Udall said Carter is trying to "make his victory — if he has one — look even bigger."

In other campaign developments:

—Morton seemed to disagree with Ford's contention that Reagan is too conservative to be elected president even if he wins the Republican nomination. Morton said Reagan would be "more difficult to elect" but that it's too soon to tell whether he could win.

He said he would support Reagan if the former governor is nominated.

—Former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird predicted that Ford may lose some primaries to Reagan but will win the nomination and be elected in November. At a news conference in Madison — sponsored by Ford's Wisconsin campaign committee — Laird said Reagan would be a good candidate.

Rep. John B. Anderson

On Tuesday, April 21, 1970, the Dixon Evening Telegraph carried a half-page news story by Rep. John B. Anderson.

Rep. Anderson wraps himself in the mantle of Abraham Lincoln, hoping the people will forget his voting record of 80 per cent socialist. Although the Democrats had the majority of senators and representatives, Anderson states our society has been rent under the past eight years of Democratic rule. He neglected to add with the help of John B. Anderson.

He states that President Nixon adopted the theme of "forward Together." Does this mean that President Nixon accomplished this by appointing numerous Democrats to high positions, and also keeping many others in the jobs they ran for Kennedy and Johnson?

A number of the leaders of the Ripon Society (which is a liberal socialist group in the Republican Party) were appointed by Nixon to important positions. This does not help the morale of the conservative Republicans. We do not know if Rep. Anderson is a member of the Ripon Society, but he associates with them and is the main speaker at some of their meetings.

John Anderson says the Republican Party is ripe for reform and that the Nixon administration was a reform administration. Well, is giving everyone who does not work $1,600 per year, plus fringe benefits, represent the Republican reform? If so, it is time to start a new party, or, better yet, vote out the liberals in the GOP. Vote for people who will stick by our Constitution. Surely we have enough of the socialist laws imported from the old world. The politicians who shout the word "reform" to any law they are promoting are just trying to fool the citizens into believing the word reform makes it a good law.

Anderson lists six reforms: 1. welfare 2. draft 3. postal service 4. social security 5. tax 6. overall reorganization of executive, plus Congressional reform. Lord knows we need the latter.

June 13, 1975, your representative, John B. Anderson, voted for the higher debt ceiling which gives Congress the privilege of spending more of the taxpayers' money.

Rep. Jack Kemp's June 14, 1975, bill would have reduced $145 million for the National Foundation on Arts, which is one of those laws that allows the bureaucrats to spend so much of your money in wasteful ways. Rep. John B. Anderson voted against the law as usual.

Rep. Thomas Railsback sticks close to the same type of voting as John B. Anderson.

John B. Anderson voted against an audit of the Federal Reserve System so the citizens could not learn how it is operated to the advantage of the extra rich and big banks. We did find out that the expenses of the Federal Reserve included $1,372 for memberships in the Council of Foreign Relations, composed of wealthy men like Vice President Rockefeller who wants a one-world government.

Oh, but John Anderson says he is such a good friend of the working people. What do you think?

Anyway, John thinks the public prefers beautiful fairy tales instead of the ugly truth.

Rep. Phil Crane's amendment to legalize the right of American citizens to own gold was defeated by one vote. Your Rep. John B. Anderson, voted against the people's right to have gold.

In the last 10 bills that I read, John B. Anderson's voting record was 21 per cent conservative, or 79 socialist, which means more inflation and higher cost of living for you.

Railsback's voting record was 25 per cent conservative, or 75 socialist.

The amendment to the Equal Educational Act HR 13915 would bar court order of school busing solely for the purpose of racial balance. John B. Anderson voted against this amendment.

Perhaps Anderson is a member of the Rockefeller crowd and belongs to the Council of Foreign Relations.

Social Security, a law that forces young workers to pay higher costs about every year, was backed and voted for by John B. Anderson. Congress does not come under this law. They created a nice one for themselves.

Anderson also voted against the school prayer amendment.

The Teague Amendment to prevent strikers from obtaining food stamps was voted against by John B. Anderson.

One thing Anderson did vote for was the so-called Revenue Sharing. You taxpayers send the federal government $1.54 for every $1 they send back to the governors, mayors, city councils that tell the people we can build you a new city hall without expense to you. Ford wants to continue Revenue Sharing at taxpayers expense in order to buy the good will of public officials. In spite of the fact that the Congress has wasted so much taxpayer earnings the country is now over $600 billion in debt.

It is evident that Congress enjoys inflation, for it gives them an excuse to raise their income with fringe benefits. Do not forget that Congress is the main cause of inflation and high prices. It would be helpful if their salaries were reduced until they balanced the budget and paid the national debt.

Elected to the House in 1962, Anderson had a voting record 100 per cent conservative. The last nine years it dropped to 20 per cent conservative. The record is clear. John B. Anderson is an agent of bigger and more restrictive government.

Two years ago I listed many laws that John B. Anderson voted for that increased your national debt and forced up the cost of living expenses. It looks like the majority of people enjoy high prices and bankrupt government, for the voters give him a big majority.

Again you are given a few voting record. Now make your own decision of what you think will be best for you.

Ben T. Shaw

"You can't sue the government for 'inflation compensation.' You ARE the government. That'll be $44,625. plus costs. Next case!"

Chou vs. Mao: he who laughs last...

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)— In the end, it appears, Chairman Mao Tse-tung may have won his 25-year struggle with Premier Chou En-lai for control of China—by outliving his rival.

Over the years, Chou and his associates twice managed to put Mao on the shelf—in an honorary and revered position, of course. But one which Mao himself has described as being on a marble pedestal in a museum.

One one such occasion, in the process of making a comeback, Mao created the Cultural Revolution, turning the ruling Communist party inside out and gripping China in a frenzy of terror and housecleaning for years—only to have Chou weather the storm and out-politic Mao. He gradually rebuilt the party structure in his image—and sandbagged Lin Piao, Mao's chosen successor and loyal lieutenant over more than three decades. While most anything is possible in China's faction-ridden politics, the Chou storey—that Lin was conspiring to assassinate Mao—does not hold water. When one knows the principals involved and their past loyalties—not of a few years but of lifetimes.

Mao, on this comeback, as before, appointed a man intensely loyal to his own belief in radical action. From all that is known to date, Hua Kuo-feng, the new acting premier, is a man who zigs when Mao zigs and zags when Mao zags.

Apparently he believes, with Mao, that at this stage and for a long time to come, China's future lies in emphasis on agriculture, with industrial gains coming only through investment of those resources remaining after farmers get what they must have to meet Tao's goals.

Industrial gains, under this planning would be achieved as agriculture provided the capital to make the step-by-step improvements wanted. Or if foreign know-how could be brought in with no strings at no political price—and without hampering agricultural progress.

As in Mao's choice of the ill-fated Lin Piao, Hua has shown a remarkable capacity in administration in a rough and not-so-gentle manner. And he has been a pragmatist, like Mao, looking for results and using ideology as a lever rather than as an objective.

It is too early to tell, of course, whether this initial Mao victory will mean the permanent installation of Hua and other Mao men in the top ranks of China and the demotion or influence stagnation of those who have been close to Chou.

But if Mao is able to hold on to his initial victory certain matters seem clear.

First, there will be no quick end to China's deep suspicion of the Soviet Union—and no letdown in China's attempts to keep some sort of a relationship with the United States as a counter-balance to the USSR.

I know first hand of Mao's hatred and distrust of Moscow and all its works, and his conviction, based on his early experiences, that aggression—economic, political and military—are in the forefront of the Kremlin's thinking.

And Mao believes, as he has so

Motivations of mercenary fighters

By TOM TIEDE
WASHINGTON (NEA)— British playwright Thomas Southerne advised us about the fate of soldiers: "They are but ambition's tools, to cut away to her unlawful ends; and when they are worn, hacked, hewn with constant service, thrown aside to rot in hospitals." What a life, slaughtering. Another English author, Siegfried Sasson, called warriors "citizens of death's gray land."

Still, there are those who are drawn to the adventures of militarism, and some few actually prefer war to peace for personal gratification. The latest evidence of this ignorance is the sudden emergence of sundry organizations and individuals whose aim it is to recruit mercenaries for the fighting in Angola. It is, as they say, the only war we have, and those who wish to profit from it, materially or otherwise, are signing up in small but significant numbers.

Some of the mercenaries insist they are motivated by higher reasons than macho. Pierre Walt, who has a mercenary group he calls The World Wide Geese Assn., located in Newark, Ohio, says he loves his country "and am willing to die for it, in Angola or anywhere else." How does one die for America in Angola? Walt says if the Russians are not stopped there, they will be in Panama soon, then in Mexico, finally in California. The domino theory is alive and well in TWWGA.

Other mercenaries are more pragmatic than Walt. A chap recruiting soldiers of fortune here in Washington is promising enlistees $1,500 a month salary plus $500 a month for expenses. He adds only reluctantly that mercenaries will not be paid until their hitch ends, which means of course that if their side loses there will not be anyone left to write out the paychecks. Grim business, warfare; the profiteer must not only survive battles, but have chosen his friends wisely.

Whatever their inspirations, mercenaries in the United States must go about their business with stealth usually reserved for throat-cutting, long-range reconnaissance patrols. Enlisting in foreign armies is a federal crime, according to sections of Title 18 of the U.S. Code, and so secrecy is the posture. Which of course makes the whole thing ever so much more fun for these fellows. Walt, as example, a French-born naturalized American, says he fought with the United States in Vietnam. "But don't ask me about rank or responsibilities—there are a lot of things I can't talk about, if you understand me."

Oh, we do understand, we do. Hush, hush, and all that. Loose lips sink ships. What Walt suggests is that he fought in Vietnam as something other than a grunt G.I., perhaps, golly, as a special agent. Undeniably, the United States was not above signing on the likes of headhunters in 'Nam. In fact one Vietnamese mercenary was called The Headhunter, since he was paid with CIA money according to the number of domes he hacked from Communists as proof for bounty. Eventually the man selected left hands, the heads proving too heavy to haul around.

As might be expected, warrior Walt is against the laws which prohibit his enterprise. He says he finds it queer that the United States will look the other way when American Jews are recruited to fight in Israel, but sternly objects if American blacks want to fight in Angola. Actually, the United States is not all that stern about the matter, a State Department officer saying he can't remember anyone ever being prosecuted for violation of foreign service prohibitions. Nonetheless, Walt does have a point: What business is it of the United States if he or any other fuzzy wants to drop a limb in the jungles of Angola?

After all, Walt has America at heart, he says. He says further that mercenaries could well be backdoor heroes in Angola, saving the nation so that one day Luanda could be developed up, ever up, until it was just like Kansas City, and all this without any official U.S. involvement. The idea is to stop the Communists, right? Well, "I enjoy killing Communists," says Pierre Walt, "better than them."

Perhaps the mercenaries should be encouraged. Perhaps it could be arranged for them to fight all wars from now on. There are millions of draft-prone people in the world today who feel "better than us."

AIRMAN WINKLE

Airman Kerry J. Winkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Winkle, 780 N. Fourth St., Ashton, has been selected for technical training in the U.S. Air Force personnel field at Keesler AFB, Miss.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., where he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Hearty beef Haggerty

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

It's top-o'-the morning time again as the Irish and their Irish-for-a-day friends make merry on St. Patrick's Day. Corned beef and cabbage and some green-tinted beer are the favored menu to help celebrate the occasion in many homes. Here is a variation making use of leftover sliced corned or roast beef, sliced potatoes and lots of onions. It's a simple but appetizing combination.

MAMA KIRKUP'S
BEEF HAGGERTY

1 pound potatoes

6 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
2 cups sliced onions
1 pound leftover sliced corned or roast beef

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until just tender. Drain, cool slightly and peel. Slice into one-half inch thick slices (makes about 1 quart), set aside. In a small saucepan melt butter. Stir in Worcestershire sauce and salt; set aside.

In a buttered 10x6x2-inch casserole arrange half of the potatoes. Brush with about half of the butter mixture. Arrange onions and meat in layers over the potatoes. Top with remaining potatoes. Brush well with remaining butter mixture. Bake uncovered in a preheated 400-degree oven until hot and potatoes are golden, about 25 minutes. Makes four portions. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

BEEF HAGGERTY with potatoes is a welcome Irish treat.

Old man Z was back at the bridge club again. He wasted no time bidding four spades after Y, his favorite partner, had opened with a slightly irregular one notrump and East had overcalled with a bid of three diamonds. East's three diamond call was one of those fancy new conventions designed to show both red suits.

West opened the king of clubs. Z studied the dummy carefully and remarked, "I played a hand just like this for Milton Work's column back in 1924. Of course, the game was auction and I was playing just three spades, but it was important to make four if I could."

Then Z proceeded to let the king of clubs hold. The suit was continued and West was allowed to hold tricks with his queen and jack. Finally, Z ruffed the fourth club, drew trumps and dummy's ace of clubs became his 10th trick.

For the benefit of most of our readers the four players in a newspaper hand back in the '20s were called A, B, Y and Z. Z sat South and was always declarer while Y was dummy and poor A and B had to defend.

DRESSY EXTRAS

To be on the safe side, try to always have extra pairs of pantyhose in neutral tones and black-tint for dressier occasions.

QUICK KIT

A few cotton swabs wrapped in aluminum foil and kept in your makeup kit come in handy for freshening up when away from home.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures. The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Couple fights over who uses family car least

MADERA, Calif. (AP)— Instead of fighting over who gets to drive the family car, Mike and Donna Erwin compete to see who can go longest without driving it.

And even though Mike lives 30 miles from his engineering job in Fresno, the family car often sits idle for days as he hops on a 10-speed racing bicycle each morning and heads for work.

"I leave home each morning at 6 o'clock," he said. "When I get to Fresno, I take a shower at the YMCA and I'm at my desk by 8. I kind of plan my day as I'm riding to work."

He tools along rural roads through this San Joaquin Valley vineyard country, then down old Highway 99, finishing up on heavily traveled streets.

"I have to be an extremely defensive rider," said the 34-year-old Erwin. "Many times people in cars just don't see me. I have to watch their faces and do a lot of yelling."

Weekday rides to work keep Erwin in shape for weekend racing. Two afternoons a week, he and other cycling enthusiasts detour by way of the Sierra Nevada foothill town of Auberry to get more exercise before pedaling home. Occasionally, he rides the bike between engineering jobs.

"I try to ride between 400 and 500 miles every week," he said. "I'm on my bike about 20 to 25 hours a week."

For emergencies, Erwin carries a spare tire and pump. He wears special arm and leg warmers during cold weather and has designed a mask and tube apparatus to preheat his air intake so he won't get respiratory problems from breathing frosty winter air.

Donna Erwin also rides her bike three miles to work at Madera Community Hospital, and sons Don, 10, and Kevin, 9, pedal any place they need to go. Tracy, 5, is too young to ride on her own, so on family outings she rides in a special buggy pulled by Erwin's bike.

Erwin said riding saved at least $20 a month in gasoline costs plus maintenance bills. More important, he feels it protects the environment while improving the family's health.

"Since I've started riding a bike, I feel a lot better," Erwin said. "It helps me relax."

Erwin, who began his long commute six months ago, contends "there really are no excuses for not riding a bicycle."

He offers these tips for neophyte cyclists:

"Start slow. Do some riding every evening. Little by little your capabilities will increase. You'll be amazed at what you can do in a month or two."

HAIR TREAT

If you worry about drying out your oily hair with a shampoo made for oily hair, try a normal-dry hair shampoo and add a little powdered magnesium to it to absorb the extra oil without hurting the hair.

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed many letters about drunk drivers, but so far as I know you have never published anything about a hazard just as great — maybe worse. I'm referring to the back-seat driver. I'm a good driver—40 years without an accident, which is a miracle, considering some of the back-seat harassment I've been up against.

I realize there are times when even the best driver needs to be told to look out for something, but superfluous advice can be very annoying and it could cause an accident — especially when the person screams instructions.

Backseat driver supposedly learns lesson

Not long ago I had one of those nervous wrecks in the car and she scared the daylight out of me twice within 10 minutes. I was so mad I deliberately ran a red light and headed into the wrong lane, facing oncoming traffic, just to shake her up.

Please print this letter as a reminder to passengers to keep their mouths shut or the accident they cause may be their own. — J.T.E.

Dear J.T.E.: I have indeed printed letters about both drunken drivers and back-seat drivers, but this is probably the first letter I've ever printed from a CRAZY driver. And I do mean you, Buster.

Anyone who would deliberately run a red light and head into the wrong lane facing oncoming traffic, just to shake up a passenger, has got to be nuts.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother died less than two months ago after being bedridden for nearly a year. A week after my mother's funeral Dad told me she couldn't take care of his sexual needs for a long time and now he has found a woman who is able to give him what he has been missing. He keeps telling me how "great" she is.

This hurts me deeply and I don't know how to let him know. I'm not interested in my father's sex life. It isn't necessary for him to justify what he is doing by complaining to me about my mother's "inadequacy."

I can't bring myself to tell Dad how I feel. I just choke up inside and the words won't come. Will you please help me by printing my letter? He never misses your column. Thank you. — Still Grieving

Dear Friend: Here's your letter — and now why don't you try to help yourself by handing your dad this column and verbalizing your feelings? I know it will be difficult but it could be a giant step toward maturity. Bottled rage can be immensely damaging. God helps those who help themselves.

Dear Ann Landers: I was one of 12 children and I never heard my mother or father or one of my sisters or brothers use a dirty word. I have never used foul language in my life.

I ask you, why does my daughter who holds an executive position have such a filthy mouth? Her teenage children can't utter two sentences in a row without cussing or resorting to gutter language. They don't care who is present.

What can I do about this appalling situation? — Stuff (As They Call Me)

Dear Grandma: Probably nothing but feel sorry for them. Dirty words are counterfeit currency for bankrupt vocabularies. Those poor kids will never know how many doors they have closed on themselves with their filthy talk. What a pity!

Schafer-Groenhagen wed

Miss Joyce Ann Schafer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Schafer, rural Dixon, became the wife of Donald Bruce Groenhagen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Groenhagen, Oregon, Feb. 15 at the First Baptist Church.

The Rev. Robert Gridley, pastor at the church, conducted the 4 p.m. nuptial service before an altar decorated with candles and arrangements of blue snapdragons.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white crepe gown designed with a lace yoke and front panel. Pearl trim and ruffles accented the yoke and sleeves. Her fingertip veil was secured by a cap decorated with seed pearls. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, Lilly of the Valley and baby's breath.

Attending as matron of honor was Mrs. David Duffy, Aurora, who wore a blue crepe gown designed with a sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves that were trimmed with blue and white daisies. Her colonial bouquet combined blue daisies, starflowers and baby's breath.

The bride's mother made the bridal gown and veil and the attendant's gown.

The groom's brother-in-law, Dennis Kelly, Oregon, attended as best man. Mark Schafer, brother of the bride from Dixon, was the usher.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church Social Hall. The wedding cake was made and served by the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. George Groenhagen. Misses Ann and Sally Hewitt served punch and coffee. In charge of gifts was Miss Barbara Tipper, Polo.

The newlyweds will reside in Oregon upon their return from a wedding trip.

The new Mrs. Groenhagen is a Dixon High School graduate and a 1974 graduate of Illinois State University. She is presently employed as an assistant at the Open Sesame Child Care Center in Dixon.

Mr. Groenhagen, a graduate of Oregon Community High School, is currently employed by Carnation Milk Co., in Oregon.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Dixon Woman's Club

The Dixon Woman's Club met Saturday, to hear the program, "Bicentennial Buttons and Bows." The program was a pantomime of the part women played in the Revolutionary War. The background scenery was a display of many flags of the Revolutionary War period.

The script was written and narrated by Mrs. Alvah Drew, Sr. "As early as 1706 there were groups of organized women known as 'Daughters of Liberty' and 'Ladies of Bedford,' who protested the tax on tea and other imports. They boycotted merchants who sold the tea and caught one merchant hoarding coffee to raise the price. They proceeded to march him to his warehouse where they not only took his keys and coffee, but spanked him thoroughly," Mrs. Drew said. She continued, "When England sent troops to America to enforce the tax laws, the men left their fields and businesses to fight. The women ran the homes, farms, and businesses. The 'Daughters of Liberty,' with the help of the 'Sons of Liberty,' pulled down the statue of King George on his horse, melted it down, and made bullets."

Women learned early how to use guns, knives, and anything handy for a weapon to defend their families and homes, Mrs. Drew said.

Some of these fighting warriors were depicted in costume by the following club women:

1. Esther Reed, wife of Joseph Reed was portrayed by Miss Zoa Favoright.

2. Sarah Franklin Bach, daughter of Ben Franklin, was portrayed by Miss Lorraine Missman. These two women organized groups such as Sewing Bees and raised enough money to make 2,500 shirts for General George Washington's army.

3. Abigail Adams, wife of John Adams, was played by Miss Esther Barton. She wrote informative letters to her husband about the enemy and was a fiery fighter for Women's Rights.

4. Mercy Otis Warren, a good friend of Abigail Adams, was portrayed by Mrs. John McLennon. She was also a great writer, a promoter for Women's Rights and for the freedom of the slaves.

5. Mary Kathryn Goddard of Baltimore was played by Mrs. Loran Miller. She ran two newspapers: "The Maryland Journal" and "The Baltimore Advertiser," to inform the readers on the war.

6. Margaret Cochran Corbin, nicknamed Molly, was portrayed by Mrs. Edward Bollman. Molly learned to repair and use firearms. She worked at her husband's side until he was mortally wounded and then took his place until she had a shattered shoulder and breast. She never regained the use of her arm. Congress made her the first woman pensioner in the United States. She is the only woman buried at West Point as a soldier who fought under fire.

7. Martha Washington was played by Mrs. Mary Thomas.

She was a great aid to her husband during the war and was instrumental in organizing groups to make and supply clothing for the soldiers as well as taking medicine and other supplies to them. Col. P. E. Poncean wrote, "her presence was an inspiration to the men."

8. Mary Ludwig was played by Mrs. Oscar Gardner. She carried water to the soldiers and was later named "Molly Pitcher Spring." She could also fire and repair weapons.

9. Elizabeth Hager from Boston was portrayed by Mrs. L. J. Curran. She, too, could use guns, repair them, fire cannons and repair them.

10. Betsy Ross was played by Mrs. Adam Carter. Betsy Ross designed the first American flag with 13 stars and stripes.

11. Deborah Sampson was portrayed by Mrs. Vincent Oehl. Since she was a husky girl and was used to doing man's work, she had a burning desire to fight. She made herself some new clothing, walked to the nearest recruiter's station, and enlisted under the name of Robert Schurteff. She joined the fourth Washington regiment stationed at West Point. At Yorktown, where Cornwallis surrendered, she caught a fever and was taken to a hospital. There a startled doctor discovered the warrior was a woman! She was honorably discharged and returned to civilian life.

12. Nancy Hart was played by Mrs. John Hyland. She was instrumental in the capture of several Tories who came to the cabin. 13. Betty Zane was portrayed by Mrs. Ralph Newman. She risked her life and was instrumental in getting ammunition to save Fort Henry. School children collected enough money to erect a Betty Zane statue at the cemetery where she is buried.

Mrs. Drew concluded the program with the statement that today, women are still fighting for women's rights.

President Mrs. Mary Thomas on behalf of the club, honored Mrs. Grace K. Johnston by presenting a bicentennial flag to the Loveland Community House. Harry Newcomer, a board member, accepted the flag and thanked the club for their part in the beautification of the grounds.

Mrs. Helen Carpenter sang songs from the Revolutionary Period while Mrs. Verne Johnston accompanied her on the piano.

Refreshments were served from a table centered with Betsy Ross and Ben Franklin dolls, red candles on a red, white, and blue base with a chenille American flag as the background. The center piece was designed by Mrs. Adam Carter.

Hostess was Mrs. Alvah Drew, Sr., and Mrs. Adam Carter was co-hostess.

They were assisted by their committee: Mrs. Bert Jacobson, Mrs. Marion Snively, Miss Clara Koepfer, Mrs. Fred Lawton, Mrs. Wilbur Maves, Mrs. Stanley Treudt, M. ss Dorothy Dodd, Miss Zoe Favoright, Mrs. Loran Miller, Mrs. Marvin Callow, Mrs. Walter Smith, Miss Rose Rudolph, Mrs. Joseph Kenney, Mrs. Jane Gannon, Mrs. Leroy Weihe and Mrs. C. G. Pool.

TV show tonight on life of James Dean

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Years ago, a lot of high school boys began wearing red wind-breakers and appeared awfully tormented. In most cases, the anguish was imitative, brought on by a movie called "Rebel Without a Cause."

But it was a mighty tribute to the acting ability of the late James Dean, the red-jacketed, anguished teen hero of that film. Tonight, his own short, tormented life is being dramatized in a two-hour NBC movie. Entitled "James Dean," it's well worth your time, if only for the brilliant acting of Stephen McHattie, a young thespian who has Dean's looks, mannerisms and speech patterns down to an uncanny T.

The flick was written by William Bast, Dean's roommate when the two were struggling for success in Hollywood 26 years ago.

It dramatizes Dean's life from the time he and Bast met as young acting students until 1955, when the 24-year-old Dean, at the peak of his fame, died in a car crash in California.

It commences through the somewhat awkward dramatic device of Bast's visit to a psychiatrist after Dean's death, the writer troubled by recurring dreams of Dean being dragged screaming to an ambulance.

"He was the last guy in the world I would have picked for a friend," says Bast (effectively portrayed by Michael Brandon) as he recalls how they first met in a college Shakespeare production in 1950.

With that, the show gets underway, tracing both the friendship of the two men and Dean's career, from the days he scrounged for any kind of work, even TV commercials, to his success in "East of Eden," "Rebel Without a Cause" and "Giant," all made in 1955.

The movie doesn't quite explain how "Deaner" and "Willie" — as they call each other — became such close friends.

But it does effectively depict the former Indiana farm boy as a man of constant curiosity about the acting profession, despite occasional lines that strain to emphasize the point.

One example occurs when Dean, wondering aloud how to depict a homosexual for an acting class, asks his roommate, "Ever make it with a guy?"

Says Bast with a grin, "Come on, I've seen you flatten guys for even joking about it."

Whereupon Dean carries on about the need for good actors "to experience everything we can."

His experiences with the ladies — an actress played by Candy Clark and a dancer played by Meg Foster — are included, but seem only cursory, with no real depth displayed.

The movie also doesn't develop very strongly the reasons for Dean's personal torment, despite his success, or why, in an era when stars still wore suits and ties, he opted for the leather-jacketed image of a Hollywood nonconformist.

Still, "James Dean" is pretty engrossing because of the fine, sensitive acting of McHattie. If he doesn't get an Emmy for his work in this show, someone should complain to the authorities.

Warning on new remedy for cancer

MILAN, Italy (AP) — The leader of an Italian team that has discovered a combination drug treatment hailed as a breakthrough in treatment of breast cancer warns it is not an "absolute remedy" and that more testing will be needed.

"Let's hope we can save thousands of lives," Dr. Gianni Bonadonna said in an interview Wednesday night. "Hopes are justified. But there is no certainty. More tests and studies over the next three years will be needed."

Bonadonna and a team of associates at the National Cancer Institute of Italy developed a treatment combining three drugs which resulted in a sharp reduction in the recurrence of the disease among women who had been operated on for advanced breast cancer. The treatments and the results were reported this week in the New England Journal of Medicine and termed of "monumental importance."

The three drugs are cyclophosphamide, methotrexate and fluorouracil, or CMF.

"The drugs we used for our study are on the market and available to patients for treatment in community hospitals," Bonadonna said. "But patient and public opinion must not think we have developed the absolute remedy."

"The main point is that physicians should be aware of the new possibility and that

Colonial Brotherhood

American colonists did not observe a Brotherhood Week, as modern Americans will this week. But such neighborly activities as "chopping bees," "house raisings," and "stone hauls" helped build the nation. Cooperation was an economic necessity in 18th Century America. The settlers had only their neighbors to turn to when they were ready to build their homes or harvest their crops. It took many hands to "raise" a building. Neighbors pooled tools and talents to construct the homes and other structures that made up their communities. And when the job was done, a "raising" often became a good opportunity for a social occasion.

Medical society discusses disclosures

CHICAGO (AP) — Disclosures about alleged Medicaid fraud apparently involve physicians the Illinois State Medical Society had complained about more than a year and a half ago, the president of the state group says.

However, said Dr. J. M. Ingalls of Paris, even though it was the medical society that first pointed out the possible fraud, the Illinois Department of Public Assistance has been unwilling to reveal to the ISMS the names of doctors it suspects.

A public information officer in the department's Springfield office said Director James Trainor has not and will not disclose the names of physicians under investigation.

In related developments Wednesday, it was revealed by state investigators that Joselito Espino, president of D J Medical Laboratories and a key figure in the investigation of public aid medical frauds, has been missing for more than a month.

Investigators for the state's Legislative Advisory Committee on Public Aid said that when they went to examine the records of the Chicago lab they found it locked and Espino missing.

D J Medical Laboratories reportedly collected more than $500,000 from the state in the last six months of 1975. Espino, 33, is from Manila, and authorities believe he may have returned there.

Ingalls said disclosures on medical fraud thus far are "just the tip of the iceberg." He noted that a medical advisory committee to the IDPA resigned last year when the department would not act on physicians giving poor medical care under Medicaid. The committee later was reinstated.

"Some of it's scary, some of it's frightening," the doctor said of alleged Medicaid fraud schemes. He noted that a physician and a pharmacist suspected of involvement were slain in Chicago.

Ingalls said if Trainor would turn over the names of suspected physicians and the charges were confirmed, the ISMS could drop the physicians from its membership and institute peer review procedures through which the doctors might lose some medical privileges.

IDPA has been unable to deal with the problem, Ingalls alleged, in part because government is inadequate to deal with such problems and in part because of politics.

The surgeon also charged that some so-called factoring companies have been responsible for raising physicians' bills under Medicaid.

Doctors and clinics sometimes sell uncollected Medicaid bills to factoring companies that collect the full amount from the state. This has happened, Ingalls said, because the state has been so slow to pay that physicians and clinics. "It is interesting how rapidly factoring companies get paid by the state," he added.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has pending rules to forbid the factoring of medical bills which involve federal money.

Ingalls accused Gov. Daniel Walker of "playing politics" with legislation to deal with unscrupulous physicians.

The legislature overrode the governor's veto of a bill creating a medical disciplinary board, but Ingalls said Walker has continued to try "to circumvent the intent" of the legislation by naming the medical examining committee in the Department of Registration and Education to serve this function.

Ohio Grade School Board okays change

OHIO— The Board of Education of Ohio Grade School District met in regular session Monday. Payment of bills from the education fund in the amount of $13,893.12 was approved by the board. Of this amount, $12,530.14 was needed to pay salaries. Building fund bills totaled $4,483.45 and $3,030.19 was paid out for transportation costs.

Current enrollment of the school is 188, and the average daily attendance for January was 95.70 per cent.

The board reviewed and adopted a new schedule of classes for grades 6-8. The new schedule eliminates electives from the program for these grades, and provides for consistent programming for each of the three groups.

In other business, the board approved the adoption of new spelling books for grades one through eight. The books are published by Lippincott and were selected by the elementary teachers. Textbooks currently in use in science and language are being studied now, with possible new adoptions for the 1976-77 school year.

The request of the Bicentennial Commission to use the athletic field and building for communitywide activities on July 24 and 25 was approved. A picnic and open house will be held as further activities of the all-class reunion to be held this summer.

The board also approved:

- a 6-8 grade girl's track program for this spring
- a meeting with a committee of teachers on March 4
- sharing of costs and facilities for school board elections with Sauk Valley College
- a change in the starting times of meetings to 8 p.m. beginning in March

The sanding of the gym floor, 1976-77 calendar, condition of the boiler and the relationship of the Board to the Ohio Education Council were discussed in preparations for future action by the board.

The proceeds will be given to the Winning Wheels project of Prophetstown.

Other projects discussed by the 20 members present was the annual bacon and egg breakfast coffee break held at the Oregon Coliseum in June and if it would be possible to sell chances on an afghan at the chili supper.

Refreshment committee for the evening was Dwight Allen, Dick Poole and Keith Eryck.

3rd graders

Washington

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer
CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — Here in the nation's heartland, any school kid worth his pencil box can tell you why we call George Washington the father of our country.

It's elementary to third-grader Lisa Lynforth, for example. "Gorg Washinting (sic) is our father because he made laws and rules," she said. "He almost made the world.... He had a very happy life, probably the best."

Miss Lynforth, along with all the other third-graders in Centralia, was asked to prepare a written answer, with no coaching from the teacher, to this seminal question in American history. A sampling of the unedited answers, poor spelling and all:

Mary Lynn Bowlby: "George Washington was the father of our country because he was the first man to be our father of the country and he died and men found his body and put his face on a stone."

But Sandra McPhail, a pupil at Washington School, thinks there is life in old George yet. "He is the Prisentent of our country. And many other countries. I think that he is the Prisentent of the hole stat."

A girl who signed her paper Alicia, avoided the question of Washington's longevity and offered this observation, "Because his birthday was the first."

Terry Harris, a classmate of Miss McPhail, takes an omnipotent view of Washington, "Because he loves us. And we love him. And he knows everything."

Rather more practical is Tina Lynn Zacheis, "Because he is the first man who wanted to be. I like him because he is nice. And he is on the one dollar."

David Justice is in basic agreement, but returns to the religious theme, "Because he was a chief of an army troop and he went all over the world.... Then in Mont Verton, George put his hand on the pi-bull, said, I'll be the first president."

Many boys, like Jeff Beadle, have heard of Washington's martial achievements. "Because he was the first president," Master Beadle wrote. "And because he won the ror."

Which "ror?"

"He was in the silver war," Kenneth Everett said. "He was a Ginirl in the silver war."

Kristy Monken doesn't care which war it was. "Aw man," she scribbled, "I'd rather be thinking about summer. Because he sailed around the world and found america."

Reminded, perhaps, of subsequent, lesser politicians, Jennifer Crain said, "Because he is the first president...because he was better than a mayor, anything in politics."

And more than a few kids would like him to come back. Tricia Stonecipher penciled, "George Washeton was the first president I know of. He is a nice president.... He is a great full man for people and children. I love him a lot for the war. I wish he was here a gin today."

Rather wistfully, Shelia Jones reports, "We like him and he likes us. We wish George was a live. We miss him."

Randy Miller explains the affection, "George Washington married a widow named Martha. They spent their honey moon at the White house. He cared for his children."

Word apparently has not yet reached everyone that the father of our country never fathered any children.

"George Washington is the father of our country," Patty Mason said, "because he told the truth to his father about the cherry tree."

Or, in Steve Grussing's up-to-date version, "Because he never lied and believed the mother of our country. An if he lied he would get sent to jail. The guvermt would get killed.... And that's the way it was 200 years ago today."

United. Six old friends with one new name.

Our customers have always been mighty important to all six of us. We've been around long enough to know that without good customers, we wouldn't be very good banks.

So one day when we were together and talking about banking services, and other financial stuff in general, we decided to try something new. We decided to work together. The reason is simple: To serve you better.

One result is our convenience card. If you're a customer of one of our banks, you can easily cash your personal checks at any of the other five United Banks. Of course you have to qualify for the card but that's pretty easy. And as time goes by, we'll add even more new services to make your life easier.

The next step was to give ourselves a name. After a lot of ideas and hard work, we six old friends selected one that says it all. UNITED.

It's an easy name to remember because like our service, it begins with you. And without you, we're just six banks.

Here are your old friends with their new names:

DROPS PLANS—Robert George, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, tells a news conference at Miami Beach, Fla., that the construction unions have dropped plans to campaign against President Ford in the primaries. (AP Wirephoto)

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE G-810: Rodney S., aged 9, used to be an honor student and very jolly.

"But now his grades have been dropping," his worried mother began.

"And he seldom smiles anymore, but acts withdrawn and unhappy."

"His school teachers have also commented on this change and asked us to have his health checked."

"We did, and the physician found nothing medically wrong."

"But I happened to overhear him saying his prayers the other night."

"And he asked God to please make his daddy quit scolding him all the time!"

"This shocked me into realizing what a change has occurred in the psychological climate of our home."

"For we used to be a wonderfully jolly family."

"But his daddy's business has been poor for the past six months so he has been grouchy and hypercritical whenever he reaches home."

"I have received many of his caustic comments, too, so I know how depressed Rodney can be."

"Dr. Crane, I finally got up enough nerve to tell his daddy about what I overheard when Rodney was saying his prayers. He denied any blame and said I was imagining things."

"But I know he began to indulge in some rigid self-analysis."

"So what can we do to restore happiness to our dinner table?"

Compliment Club
This is a perfect situation for launching the "Compliment Club."

I started it as a classroom project in my "Applied Psychology" courses in our Evening Division of Northwestern University.

The students were employed men and women from Loop department stores, factories and professional offices.

Two of the girls (aged 19) had become so blue and despondent that they had contemplated suicide, just because of lack of any friendly praise or compliments from their employers and co-workers during the day. So they had enrolled in my psychology class, hoping some jolly camaraderie would give them new zest for living.

But these students were only together during the two-hour evening class, so they had little time for conversation.

That's when I launched the "Compliment Club" as a 30-day project, for which I granted classroom credit.

It involves paying a sincere compliment to each of three different people every day.

And keeping up this "Golden Rule" project for 30 consecutive days.

The results have been miraculous, for shy, tongue-tied people soon divert their attention from themselves, as they "size up" their companions for virtues that merit sincere praise.

And you parents, as well as teachers in public or church schools, can profitably start this "Compliment Club" project every term.

Many men get "up tight" about business worries and forget their former happy camaraderie with their kiddies, so they now caustically criticize instead of praising their wife and youngsters.

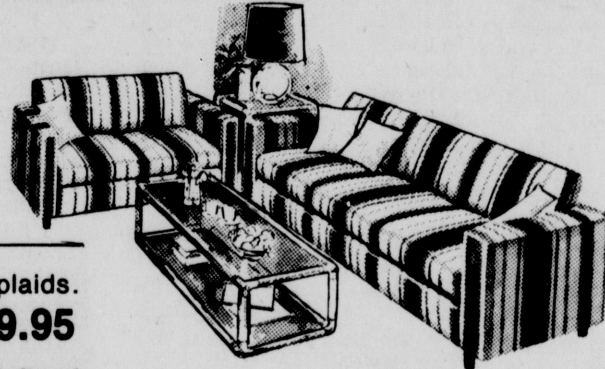

Children need love and praise as much as vitamins and food! So send for the "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and change dinner table gloom to gladness!

(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Melott, Ind. 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Suns set in Detroit

By The Associated Press
The Phoenix Suns set in Detroit Wednesday night.

Leading by seven points after three periods, the Suns managed just eight points in the final quarter — lowest in the National Basketball Association this season — and suffered a 105-94 setback at the hands of the Pistons.

"We simply stopped the things we had done," said Coach John MacLeod.

What the Suns did was stop putting the ball in the basket. After making 35 of their first 58 shots for a blistering 60.3 per cent, the Suns suddenly cooled off and canned just three of 21 attempts in the final 12 minutes.

While Phoenix missed its first 11 shots in the fourth period and did not make a basket until the eight-minute mark, Detroit turned in a balanced attack, with Archie Clark and Eric Money leading the way with six points each in the winning surge.

Bob Lanier, playing his best game in several weeks after a variety of injuries, paced the Pistons with 23 points while five teammates also were in double figures. Paul Westphal had 22 points for the Suns.

Elsewhere, the Kansas City Kings trimmed the Golden State Warriors 103-91, the Seattle SuperSonics whipped the Boston Celtics 124-99 and the Houston Rockets drubbed the Los Angeles Lakers 114-98.

Kings 103, Warriors 91
Jimmy Walker and Sam Lacey scored 24 points apiece and powered a fourth-quarter Kansas City surge. Nate Archibald's basket with 7:48 to go broke an 85-all tie and a pair of baskets by Lacey pushed the lead to 94-87. Golden State went without a field goal in the final six minutes.

Walker scored seven points in the final three minutes and Lacey added and a game-high 17 rebounds to his 24 points. Rick Barry topped Golden State with 20 points.

SuperSonics 124, Celtics 99
The playmaking of Slick Watts and the shooting of Fred Brown carried Seattle to its fifth straight triumph. Watts had 15 assists and 11 points and Brown connected on 14 of 21 field goal attempts to finish with a game-high 29 points.

With Boston trailing 37-36 in the second period, Seattle scored nine points in a row to break the game open. Leonard Gray scored 12 points in the third quarter as Seattle built its lead to 88-67 and coasted the rest of the way. Gray finished with 22 points and Mike Bantom added 20 while Dave Cowens and Charlie Scott topped the Celtics with 18 apiece.

Rockets 114, Lakers 98
John Johnson scored 15 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter as Houston held off a Los Angeles rally. Ed Ratleff led the Rockets with 22 points while Rudy Tomjanovich and Johnson each scored 20. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Lakers led all scorers with 34 points.

Another Mino in lineup?

CHICAGO (AP) — Minnie Mino is back with the Chicago White Sox. It's strictly as a coach this time, but don't be surprised in the near future if there is another Orestes Mino in the lineup.

It won't be Orestes Minnie Mino, but it could be Orestes Jr. "Watch him closely," said Minnie of his 22-year-old son. "He can hit, run, throw and he loves baseball."

Minnie recently was named a coach of the White Sox under the Bill Veck regime and that ended the former White Sox star's career as player-manager at Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

"I'm a rookie again," said Minnie. "I wanted to win the pennant at Puerto Vallarta and bring it here to Chicago, but we finished second this time." Mino, always the sentimental, then revealed how tough he can be and told the story of how he yanked his son out of a game because Orestes Jr. had missed a sign.

"He gave me the bunt sign and I missed it" explained the younger Mino. "I thought it was the hit-and-run and I hit into a double play. When I came back to the bench he told me to sit down and not take my position in the field."

"I asked him if he was trying to show me up, but he told me he was only doing his job," said the younger Mino. "I think he's a great manager. Not only on the field but also off the field. There were times I would get jealous because he'd spend so much time with the other players. But I got to understand."

The younger Mino then told a story which might be a first in professional baseball.

"We had talked about it since we were both playing on 'he same team but we never thought it would happen. We were playing our top rival and always had tough games with them. We were fighting for the playoff and they had a 6-5 lead."

"I hit a home run to left center to tie the game and Dad was the next batter. He hit one in the same spot to make it 7-6. Eventually we won the game 8-6 but those back-to-back home runs decided it. It was just a beautiful feeling."

The Minos—father and son—had another beautiful feeling about a month ago when Veck called to tell Minnie he was going to be a White Sox coach under newly-appointed Manager Paul Richards.

"It was early in the morning when the phone rang," said young Mino. "Dad answered and I half heard what was going on. When Dad came back, he opened his arms and told me he was going back to the White Sox. We embraced. It was a moment I'll never forget."

"I'll be wearing No. 9 again," said the father. "I always told my wife that when I die I want to be taken back to Chicago and be buried in my White Sox uniform. Now I'm back to the city I love and the people who love me. Now when I die, I don't have to worry. They can bury me right here in Illinois."

Ali talks about fight

SAN JUAN (AP) — "There ain't no guarantee I'm gonna win."

Muhammad Ali was talking about his heavyweight title defense against unranked Jean-Pierre Coopman Friday night, a fight in which the champion is an overwhelming favorite.

"The fighters who are nuthin' give me hell," said Ali, relaxing in his suite, a suite he was forced out of for a brief time Wednesday when a kitchen fire sent smoke pouring through the El San Juan Hotel.

Ali then mentioned what he said were tough fights against Al "Blue" Lewis, Jurgen Blin, Chuck Wepner and Rudi Luebbers. Luebbers outpointed Coopman in 1974.

"Ken Norton was supposed to be a bum when he fought me the first time and he broke my jaw," said Ali, recalling his 12-round split-decision loss to Norton on March 31, 1973. Norton now is the No. 1 contender. "Right away when the fight is made, Coopman is a bum," said Angelo Dundee, Ali's trainer. "That puts him (Ali) on guard. He's had trouble with bums. He's concerned about a letdown."

Ali goes into his fight with the 29-year-old Belgian off one of the greatest victories of his career—a 14-round triumph over Joe Frazier in a classic battle in Manila last Oct. 1.

Coopman also appears confident and has said he will win in 11 rounds.

But when the fight was announced last January, the challenger, who understands very little English and speaks only Flemish, was quoted as saying in Belgium that he knew he didn't have a chance but would do his best.

George Kanter, Coopman's U.S. representative, insists Coopman was misquoted.

Coopman, who will be giving away five inches in reach and about 25 pounds to Ali, apparently plans to try to pressure Ali, who has been nursing a cold for 11 days.

"He feels Muhammad Ali's great shortcoming is his inability to fight three-minute rounds," said Kanter.

The Ali-Coopman fight will be the second championship bout Friday night at the 12,000-seat Roberto Clemente Coliseum, which is expected to be nearly sold out.

In the first title match, Alfredo Escalera of Puerto Rico will defend his World Boxing Council junior lightweight championship against Jose Fernandez of New York.

The Ali-Coopman fight will be seen live in the United States, with the CBS telecast to run from 9-11 p.m. EST and the bout to start at about 9:45 p.m.

Maryland set an all-time major-college record for team field-goal shooting accuracy at .547 last season, even though three of its top four shooters were guards.

Holy Cross ranked as the nation's most improved basketball major in 1975, finishing 20-8 compared to 8-18 in 1974 for an improvement of 11 games (12 more victories and 10 fewer defeats). Next was Kentucky, up 10½ games from 13-13 to 26-5, including a runnerup finish in the National Collegiate Championships, and third was Pepperdine, up 9½ games from 8-18 to 17-8. Four majors improved eight games — 17-9 California, 13-11 Cleveland State, 22-2 Pan American and 18-8 Auburn. If you go back two years, Pan American takes the cake with a jump of 19 games. The Broncos were 4-22 in 1973 before coach Abe Lemons took over.

Boucha meets Forbes for first time in 13 months

By FRANK BROWN

AP Sports Writer

The distance between them was more than that of opponents. The feeling that kept their eyes from meeting was not hatred as much as the nearly-healed scars that still itched, reminding them of what had happened 13 months ago.

For the first time since the January 4, 1975 incident that made hockey history and irreversibly changed their lives, Henry Boucha and David Forbes found themselves on the same ice surface Wednesday night.

For Boucha, there had been three eye operations that hadn't quite worked and an unhappy stint with the World Hockey Association's Minnesota Fighting Saints since the day that Forbes' stick-filled fist met with his face. Instead of a Minnesota North Stars uniform, he wore the garb of a Kansas City Scout.

For Forbes, still with the Boston Bruins, there had been the anguish of a trial that ended in a hung jury — one which never declared him guilty, but never completely rid him of the blame for the first incident in sports history to be decided by the courts.

"Yeah, it was a strange feeling," said Boucha, who was on the ice only three times when Forbes was out there. "It was just another hockey game. That's really all I can say about it."

Forbes, still involved in litigations and admittedly tired of the entire business surrounding the encounter, said nothing at all.

The game ended in a 3-3 tie, with Chuck Arnason's goal leading Kansas City back from a 3-2 deficit. In the other National Hockey League games, Philadelphia topped Vancouver 6-4; Montreal trimmed Toronto 7-5; the New York Rangers clubbed Washington 11-4; Buffalo and Chicago tied 4-4; St. Louis and Los Angeles tied 2-2; California beat Minnesota 6-3, and the New York Islanders stopped Detroit 5-3.

Flyers 6, Canucks 4
Vancouver Coach Phil Maloney was seething after the Bill Barber goal with 49 seconds left that helped Philadelphia beat his Canucks.

"Everything is convenient for Bobby Clarke," he said, maintaining that Clarke had interfered with his goalie behind the net in making possible Barber's second goal of the game.

Canadiens 7, Maple Leafs 5
The forward line of Guy Lafleur, Pete Mahovlich and Steve Shutt combined for six goals — two each — and six assists for the Canadiens, who built a 3-0 lead but fell behind 4-3 before coming back to win.

Rangers 11, Capitals 4
The Rangers' line of Steve Vickers, Wayne Dillon and Rod Gilbert had a similar field day against Washington, combining for five goals and 11 assists.

Sabres 4, Black Hawks 4
Danny Gare tipped in Gil Perreault's 35-foot slap shot with less than two minutes remaining to give Buffalo its tie with Chicago.

Kings 2, Blues 2
Gary Sargent and Bob Nevin fired in third-period goals 3:12 apart to help Los Angeles tie St. Louis, which had jumped to a 2-0 lead on breakaway goals by Derek Sanderson and Jerry Butler.

Seals 6, North Stars 3
Gary Sabourin and Wayne Merrick of California scored three minutes apart in the third period to give the Seals an insurmountable 5-1 lead against the North Stars.

Islanders 5, Red Wings 3
Denis Potvin's power-play goal with 1:52 remaining snapped a 3-3 tie and Islanders rookie Bryan Trottier added an empty net goal with 14 seconds left to ice the triumph, only the second for New York in its past eight games.

Reaction to U.S. fishing limits expected from others

LONDON (AP)—West European fisheries experts say United States legislation to limit fishing in waters 200 miles off its coasts could set off a chain reaction of other nations imposing similar restrictions.

The experts predict a change in the thinking of the nine nations of the European Common Market, which has opposed changing present 12-mile limits.

Pravda, the organ of the Soviet Communist party, said last week that the Soviet Union will change its position and support a 200-mile economic zone for coastal nations at the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference starting March 15 in New York. The Soviet Union fishes extensively off North America.

Some sources at the United Nations in New York said the U.S. legislation could spur nations attending the sea law conference to agree after two previous efforts to an all-embracing treaty. But others maintained it might encourage nations to act unilaterally.

Iceland, Ecuador, Peru and Chile already have 200-mile fishing limits. Mexico's Congress recently enacted a 200-mile zone of economic control, and Canada has expressed a desire to follow that course, which gives a nation jurisdiction over all resources in the sea and seabeds, in addition to fish.

The U.S. Senate action on Jan. 28 to establish a 200-mile limit on fishing — but not on other sea resources — by July 1, 1977, resulted from what Americans say is the over-taking of fish stocks by massive foreign fleets off North America, especially New England.

Japan and the Soviet Union are likely to be the nations most affected by any strict enforcement of the U.S. legislation. West Germany says it could be hurt badly in the long run.

Pravda said the Russians would agree to a 200-mile limit as long as foreign fleets are allowed to take what fish the national fleets do not want.

The Japanese catch 16 per cent of their total world take of fish off U.S. coasts. The Russians land slightly less than 10 per cent of their world catch off the East Coast and West Coast and Alaska, but if Canada goes ahead with its plan to extend economic control, the Soviet Union could stand to lose about a third of its catch if regulations are strictly enforced.

West Germany recently agreed to reduce its catch off Iceland because of Iceland's unilateral declaration of a 200-mile fishing zone, and it had plans to fish in U.S. waters to help make up for its losses.

The U.S. legislation would require foreign fishing fleets to have U.S. permission to fish inside the 200-mile zone, and this would be given only after American fishermen are assured of their full quotas of catches.

Japan, one of the world's major fishing nations, netted 1.67 million tons of fish within 200 miles of America's West Coast in 1974.

Japanese officials said they feared the U.S. decision, and any subsequent rulings for 200-mile limits by other countries, could hit their fishing industry hard. Ten per cent of Japan's work force is employed in fishing and related industries.

The Soviet Union last year had an average of about 300 trawlers, support and factory ships a month operating off U.S. coastlines.

Figures on the Soviets' annual catch off the United States were not available in Moscow.

But the U.S. National Marine Fisheries Service in Washington said that in 1973, the latest year for which statistics are available, Soviet trawlers caught about 1.1 million tons of fish inside the proposed 200-mile limit. The total U.S. catch in 1974 was 2.18 million tons.

According to the International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries, the Soviet catch off Canada's east coast in 1974 was 1.272 million tons. Canadian officials say Soviet fishing off the Canadian west coast was virtually nil.

The total Soviet fish catch in 1974 was 9.6 million tons.

Fishing is an important part of the Soviet economy, and under Moscow's current five-year plan, fish production is to be raised by a quarter, or about 2.5 million tons.

According to U.S. Department of Commerce statistics, annual per capita consumption of fish in the Soviet Union was 22.5 pounds in the period 1964-66, the latest figures available. U.S. per capita consumption in 1974 was 12 pounds.

The National Marine Fisheries Service in Washington says the Russians in 1973 took 496,100 tons of fish off the U.S. East Coast, mainly New England. The East Coast catch was chiefly red and silver hake, herring and mackerel, with small amounts of cod and squid.

Off the U.S. West Coast in 1973, the Russians landed about 480,700 tons of fish, chiefly Pacific hake, the service says. They took 162,800 tons off Alaska in that year, mostly Alaskan pollock, flounder, mackerel, Pacific Ocean perch and some Pacific cod, according to Fisheries Service estimates.

West Germany, whose catch quota off the U.S. East Coast has been steadily whittled down in the last few years, said the planned U.S. extension will be "painful, but not catastrophic" in the short term.

But, like the Japanese, the Germans fear the long-term repercussions will be grave and endanger their fishing industry. The West German government recently agreed to halve its pollock and cod catch off Iceland to 60,000 tons a year and is worried by British proposals that could ban its trawlers from large chunks of the North Sea.

German fishermen had planned to beef up their catch of hake off the U.S. West Coast to 10,000 tons a year to help compensate for the Icelandic losses. That, officials in Bonn lamented, could now be torpedoed by the U.S. move.

The Germans say they believe that Canada, off whose shores they net 40,000 tons of cod a year now, will follow the U.S. lead.

Officials at Bonn's Nutrition Ministry, Norwegian officials and government circles in other European countries expect the U.S. move will mean the European Common Market will now switch from its earlier opposition to 200-mile zones at the sea-law conference.

Britain has no fishing stake off the U.S. Atlantic seaboard. But it is waging a "cold war" against Iceland, which last Oct. 15 unilaterally extended its fishing limits from 50 to 200 miles in a bid to halt overfishing of vanishing cod and other stocks by foreigners.

If the Common Market declares a 200-mile zone, giving priority of catches to fishermen of its member states, it will likely mean the big fishing fleets from the Soviet Union and other Eastern bloc countries such as Poland and East Germany will be forced to trim their catches in Western European waters.

People know a great car when they see it.

Chrysler Cordoba.

Is Cordoba
successful because of its affordability?
YES!

Cordoba's base sticker price is only $5,392, excluding state and local taxes and destination charges.
And that's thousands less than Thunderbird and Riviera!

Is Cordoba
successful because of its looks and luxury?
YES!

Despite its surprising affordability,
Cordoba offers many luxuries standard. As for the looks, they speak for themselves.

Is Cordoba's
success one of the reasons for its outstanding resale value?
YES!

According to Automotive Market
Reports, of all intermediate personal-size luxury cars, a one-year-old Cordoba returns the greatest percentage of investment based on original sticker price. In other words, Cordoba has the highest resale value in its class!

The Doctor Says: Megacolon in its common form is a congenital condition

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me something about megacolon. Would the bowel movement of a person with this condition be large or small since it enlarges the colon and narrows the rectum and causes the waste to back up in the colon? Would the kind of food a person eats have any effect on the condition? Would one be any more likely to get cancer of the colon or rectum?

Since this is a congenital defect will it be likely to improve with age or get worse? Any comments you can make on this condition would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — Megacolon is also called Hirschsprung's disease. A common form is congenital, and is present from birth. Some vital nerve endings are absent in the lower part of the colon and rectal area. This permits the muscles in the wall of the rectum and lower colon to over-contract acting like an obstruction. That is why you have heard that the colon is narrowed at the outlet.

The area of the colon above the obstructing narrow outlet dilates enormously and becomes filled with food residue. And the colon in this area becomes markedly dilated. Unfortunately the condition does not disappear as the child gets older.

The condition causes distention, constipation and accumulation of gas in the colon. The large dilated colon can be seen and felt through a thinned abdominal wall. Inflammation of the colon called enterocolitis is a frequent complication in persons suffering with this problem.

Adults can acquire the disease, usually from long standing constipation, and less commonly from nerve diseases that destroy the nerves to the rectal area and lower colon. Individuals who repeatedly fail to answer the bowel urge gradually blunt this reflex and eventually it doesn't work at all. Chronic constipation on this basis may often lead to an acquired form of enlarged, dilated colon. Acquired megacolon can be prevented.

The size of the bowel movements vary but may be quite a large amount with limited caliber. Many patients with this problem often require enemas to relieve their condition. Remember the basic disease is on obstruction of the outlet of the bowel.

Megacolon may exist in varying degrees of severity. Mild cases can be managed with minimal difficulties — diet, laxatives or enemas. Care should be used to limit enemas to retention enemas of mineral or olive oil. Water enemas or soap suds enemas may be retained beyond the obstructed area and result in water intoxication and other problems.

There is no solid evidence that megacolon has any relationship to developing cancer.

More severe cases can be treated surgically. There are various operations that have been devised but most involve removing the obstructed area without any nerves and pulling down the area of the colon with proper nerve control. When these procedures work properly the lower bowel then works like it does in other people.
